The Wooden Horse

Hugh Walpole

When Harry Trojan came home to Cornwall after twenty years in New Zealand, with the democracy learned by working his hands, he was the "wooden horse" who boldly carried into the Trojan walls a whole army of alien ideals,... what most distinguishes The Wooden Horse (1909) is its passionate adoration of the sea, the cliffs, the weather-worn old Cornish houses, where bearded men tell of haunted moors and the winds of the deep.
